

Hi I'm John Baltes – Managing Partner of SVA Consulting. If you're a corporate decision-maker, I'd like to introduce you to a service we offer that can dramatically change the way you look at your business and, more importantly, help guide the performance of your organization.

If you don't have the time, desire or funds to build the layers of personnel management necessary to guide performance, THERE IS A SOLUTION – and it is right in front of you... INFORMATION - specifically, introducing the right information and the right time into your workplace... real information that guides behaviors, decision making and ultimately performance. Please keep in mind - information is actionable.

At SVA we have tenured business professionals who understand business, who master data systems and, more importantly, who know how to CORRELATE the two and positively change the culture of an organization. When the right information is presented in a timely fashion, people already understand its significance and will know how to take action.

In business, source data can come from time sheets, placing orders, recording production, and so forth. What makes this kind of data actionable is how it is assembled and delivered.

SVA's Business Intelligence specialists can take what is right in front of you today and show you how to turn it into increased performance, higher efficiency and greater potential growth.

Contact an SVA Consulting Business Intelligence Professional to learn more.